MICHAEL W. DOBBINS
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT

V. Nature of Suit: 950 Constitutionality of State Statute

VI. Cause of Action:

My rights under the Constitution requires that I be guaranteed Due Process and Equal Protection and that if I should be accused of a crime, there should be at the least some kind of fact, evidence, witnesses, should support the allegation to establish that I am guilty of a crime. The law requires that no person can go into a police station and accuse a citizen of a crime with supporting evidence of some kind, in some form, whether it be by tapes, letters videos. I was wrongly accused of making a sexual statement to a minor in June of 2005 but was not reported to police until November of 2005. My girlfriend babysitted her from time to time, but I always slept in my sons room as to stay out of the kids way and have my peace and quite. I never say anything other than Hi to her as I always do, and then go on about my routine. I was falsely accused of attempted exploitation of a child, it never happened, no one heard, nor saw such action, NO witness, no fact, absolutely, no supporting evidence of any kind. I could not believe that you could loose your rights in such a way. I have completed my probation of 18 months with no jail time, but I still need to be cleared of such an ugly crime that I did not do.
